WILLIAM DEKAMPSTER BOARD.
Today at Fort Atkinson was laid at rest the mortal remains of William Dekampster Board, former governor of Wisconsin and a man who has left a lasting impression upon the nation as a whole. A man whose devotion to an ideal has been an inspiration to thousands who will regret his death, although they never knew him personally. The work that he has accomplished for the dairy industry of the state and nation will live long after him as a perpetual monument for years to come. He was a constructive citizen, devoted to an ideal that brought forth such wonderful results for humanity. He was a thinker and a writer. His wonderful insight into human nature and looking to the future have given him a place among the really great men of this country. He was defeated in his race for reelection for the governorship by a misguided people who did not look into the future and see that his attitude that the English language should be taught in all schools in the state and that this should be America for Americans and not a sectional resting place for foreigners who brought their languages and customs and perpetuated them by the teaching of the alien tongue in school. This war has proven that Governor Board looked farther into the future than perhaps he ever dreamed of. He was a philosopher and statesman. His death is mourned by all who knew and loved him and closes the earthly career of one of the great men of Wisconsin. A soldier, a writer, a student, he gave his best to the world and to the people of the state he loved so well. May he rest in peace.

THE UNIVERSITY.
There should be great care and deliberation in selecting the successor to the late Charles Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin. Consideration of the continuance of the great work he had begun and the importance of naming a man who is in close touch with the situation, should be the first consideration for qualification. In Dean E. A. Birge is found a man who meets these requirements and whose long and useful membership as a member of the faculty of the institution deserves recognition. No one individual man was in closer touch with the late president's ideas as to the future of the university and he would be ready to carry them to a successful issue in this critical period of reconstruction of institutions, of learning to meet the new conditions that will have to be decided. If, however, his age is considered a barrier, the name of Prof. Frederick Turner, former member of the university faculty, now of Harvard university, a native son of Wisconsin, a profound scholar, a wonderful instructor and alive to the necessities of the state and above all, beloved by the students of the decade or so ago when he was a member of the faculty, might be considered. What the university needs for its titular head is a man who is thoroughly alive to the needs of the day and of the university. It is to be hoped that the university will only be made after careful thought and attention paid to all sides of the question.

IN RUSSIAN PRUSSIA.
The American army of occupation, composed of the tried and seasoned veterans of this great war now closing, have marched into the Russian Prussia, have actually crossed the frontier, the first contingent, that of the Red Cross, the angels of mercy, and the signal corps detachments have followed this honor. Behind them come the "doughboys" who have worked such marvels in endurance and courage during the long months of fighting, the cream of American manhood and wonderful to relate they are welcomed as friends by the citizens of the various communities through which they pass. Theirs is the task of aiding in the reconstruction of a nation torn by internal disorders and dissensions. An empire that has vanished in a flash, kingdoms that have crumbled, and in their place new uncertain forms of government from the violent, anarchistic, Bolshevik methods, to the more thoughtful republics led by the students of Germany. These detachments have been selected with thought and deliberation by General Pershing and the honor awarded them is a just reward for their wonderful service in the field of battle. With this army will be found our Rock county and Wisconsin boys, who form the famous Thirty-second Division. They have earned the distinction and will conduct themselves on their peaceful mission with the same determined purpose that gave them the name "Red Devils" when actual fighting was going on.

McADOO RESIGNS.
There appears to be a difference of opinion as to why McAdoo actually resigned his numerous offices as member of the cabinet and controller of the railroads of this nation. Some see a man looking to the future and the general election two years from now when he will appear as an aspirant for the presidential honors as the avowed sponsor of government ownership of public utilities. He leaves the office created for him, when the real work and the real necessity for control of the railroads as a war measure is over. Other writers believe he is sincere in the plea he must cooperate his personal fortune and can no longer devote his energies to government work at the sacrifice of his personal interests. Certainly the work that had been done upon him, while from being secretary of the treasury, has been enough to tax the energies of a man much stronger, physically, than Mr. McAdoo. That he waited until his resignation would not throw the country in a turmoil during war days, shows he has not done this hastily, but with due deliberation. Other writers even hint at a disagreement with the President over after-war plans. They cite the instances of Bryan and later Garrison's retirement from cabinet positions. Perhaps all three considerations are correct, but it is certain that Mr. McAdoo has filled a difficult position with courage and determination at one of the most critical periods in the history of this nation and has left a lasting impression upon the financial world he has governed during his term of office.

The United States senate has decided that it will not investigate the election of United States Senator-elect Newberry from Michigan, whom it is alleged spent an unusual amount of money to gain the desired end, and also that they will drop the pending investigation of Robert M. La Follette, whom it is alleged made unparliamentary utterances in a speech in St. Paul. This ends both cases as far as the public goes.

It is very refreshing to read that there is not going to be any shortage of hard coal this winter, particularly so when the head of the household shovels a few tons of soft coal into the maw of his furnace and says things that are really naughty over the order of the fuel administrator, that will not give him hard coal instead of soft for his steam heating plant.

Janesville merchants are preparing for a heavy trade in Christmas gifts. The joyous news which was flashed over the world when the armistice was signed has put the public in a frame of mind to buy as much cheer as it can. With everyone working and making plenty of money it will not be difficult to realize their ambitions.

The cause of the fatherless children of France has been given substantial and material aid by the untiring work of the ladies who conducted the bazaar the last two days of the week just ended and through the generosity of citizens in all walks of life. Everyone wanted to do their share and much good will result.

Thanksgiving takes on a peculiar significance this year and while our soldier boys across the seas can not be with us, still the knowledge that the fighting has ceased and that right has conquered might, is a lasting satisfaction and one for which we can all give thanks to the Almighty.

This is unusual weather for this period of the year and the workers who are laboring to complete the first unit of what is to be Janesville's biggest factory, a business that will completely revolutionize conditions in the city, appreciate the favor shown them by Dame Nature.

England's attitude toward the Hun is not softened by the spectacle of her fighting men coming back human wrecks from German prison camps. The day of reckoning will come when all are seated at the peace table. The British will see that proper penalties are imposed.

While the actual fighting is over, still we must economize and save food that we may feed the millions on the verge of starvation in Europe. Until another crop can be harvested the United States must be the storehouse of the world.

Doesn't it warm the cockles of your heart to pick up your favorite newspaper and read that the august senators at Washington have cut off another half billion of dollars through proposed reduction of taxes in the revenue bill?

These hunters returning from the Northern woods have wonderful tales to tell of the unusual hunting conditions that exist. Best of it is they bring back the proof of their stories so we must believe them.

David George says it is Britain's duty to make the nation a fit place for heroes to live in. War records indicate that England is going to be crowded when she is ready for the reception.

We have thought and talked in billions and millions for so long that the question arises as to whether we will ever be ready to come down to just thousands.

THE MOVIES UNMASKED.
A moving picture heroine asked for a speech during the exhibition of one of her plays, said:

"You see the hero advancing, looking at me tenderly, kindly, and saying something. What he said was, 'The ventilation is rotten in here today.'"

"Notice me with my tear-dimmed eyes—often made tears—putting my hands on his shoulders, laying my head against his wishbone and looking undying love into his eyes. The picture shows me looking like I was remarking, 'I didn't have time to get any breakfast this morning. What I would do to a plate of pig's knuckles is a war.'"

"All I could think of besides was the thousands of women who would look at that film and sigh and murmur, 'Ah, if only I could be loved like that.'"

The Kaiser was fortunate in one way. When he entered Holland he didn't have to listen to any long, tedious addresses of welcome.

REV. DR. RANDOLPH BURIED ON SUNDAY

Milton, Wis., November 25.—The funeral services of the late Rev. Dr. Randolph were held Saturday afternoon and the attendance was so large that many were unable to find standing room. Services were conducted by President W. C. Daland, who gave a general review of Dr. Randolph's life. Rev. E. E. Fantom, pastor of the Milton Junction S. D. B. church, Rev. Chas. A. Sayre, of Albion, and Rev. C. B. Loofbore, of Walworth, spoke especially of Pastor Randolph's influence upon the men of the S. D. B. church of which he was pastor for ten years before coming to Milton, spoke of his great work with that church and in Alfred university and in reform movements in New York state. H. W. Road of Madison, gave a patriotic address, touching especially upon the death of Pastor Randolph's two sons, Kenneth and Paul, who had given their lives for their country and Prof. A. E. Whitford of Milton College, and Allison L. Burdick of the University of Wisconsin, spoke of the lives and characters of Kenneth and Paul as they had known them.

Prof. Geo. C. Shultz of Whitewater, brought a tribute from the First Congregational church of that city where Dr. Randolph had served as acting pastor for the past six months. Prof. M. Barbour of the Milton College faculty, spoke in behalf of the college and Dean Edwin H. Lewis of the Lewis Institute, Chicago, gave the closing address. Music was furnished by an octette of male voices. Representatives from Janesville, Madison, Whitewater, Edgerton, Albion, Palmyra, Walworth and Rock, in addition to a detachment of the S. D. B. church, served as a guard of honor at the S. D. B. church Saturday, while the body of Dr. Randolph lay in state. Hundreds paid their last respects to their pastor and friend.

The patriotic service at the S. D. B. church Saturday morning was largely attended and the address by Dr. E. H. Lewis of Chicago, merited and received high commendation.

BESTER CHARLES RANDOLPH.
The Rev. Lester Charles Randolph, son of Howell W. and Hannah (Bowen) Randolph, was born at Walworth, Wisconsin, August 16th, 1864, and died in Milton, Wisconsin, Nov. 21st, 1918, in the 55th year of his age.

His childhood and youth were spent in or near Walworth. In early life he gave his heart to Christ, was baptized, and united with the Seventh-day Baptist church at Walworth. He attended the Walworth district school and what was known as the "Big Rock Academy," and in 1884 he entered Milton College, from which he was graduated in 1888.

The year following his graduation he spent in advanced studies in Cornell university, in the department of philosophy, under President (now professor) Schurman. Then he entered the Baptist Union Theological seminary at Morgan Park, Illinois. In this seminary were other young men with whom he was closely associated. They engaged in evangelistic work as quartets, and their labors together laid the foundation of Dr. Randolph's later successful work as an evangelist and worker in the field of temperance and other reforms.

During his seminary course he was made pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church in Chicago, and this relationship continued till 1899. He then served the Seventh-day Baptist Missionary society as evangelist for one year. In 1900 he became pastor of the church at Alfred, N. Y. During this pastorate he engaged in active work in temperance and his labors were attended with distinct success. In 1904 by the kindness of the people of his congregation he went on the "World's Sunday School Cruise" to Palestine, being chairman on shipboard of the delegation from the state of New York. After taking that trip he engaged to a considerable extent in lecture work in which he continued until he resigned his charge at Alfred and became pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church in Milton, where he lived in active work for the remainder of his life.

In 1910 he resigned his charge at Alfred and became pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church in Milton, where he lived in active work for the remainder of his life. He was always a close friend and adviser of the students and all young people. He was for many years a trustee of the college and more recently served as vice president of the board. He labored earnestly for the advancement of the college in every respect, particularly the increase of its endowment funds.

During the last few years he won distinction as a popular lecturer and as a speaker in the temperance work. His most popular lectures have been "The Delightful Pelody," "The American Boy," "The Bright Side of Life on Four Continents," and "The Reign of the Schoolmarm."

In addition to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, he received the degree of Master of Arts from Milton College, that of Bachelor of Divinity from the Vermont Woman's College.

TO WEAK TO WORK.
Vermont Woman Tells How She Regained Her Health.

Albany, Vt.—"I was run-down, no appetite, and too weak to do my housework—medicines did not seem to help me until I tried Vinol—I soon noticed an improvement, and am now well, strong, and able to do my work."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Miss Babba's case, is because it contains beef, and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a weakened, run-down system, make rich, red blood and create strength.

Smith, Drug & Co. Vinol is sold in Broadhead by W. J. Smith and Druggists everywhere.

He was married in Chicago, December 25th, 1890, to Susan Caroline Strong, of Hebron, Conn., later of Owego, N. Y. He Dr. and Mrs. Randolph were born six children, three of whom are now living. News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Sylvia Breamer who has been called the most successful new young leading lady of the year has recently given the motion picture public a jolt. It happened when she filed suit against her husband asking a divorce. You see only Sylvia and Edwin W. Morrison, the man in the case, knew about the marriage. Mr. Morrison is a theatrical manager of Australia from whence the talented Sylvia came two years ago.

Miss Breamer has an inheritance of which she is very proud and to which she attributes much of her interpretive ability. She is a daughter of the British Navy and the granddaughter of an Italian woman. Miss Breamer's first work of note was done with Mr. "Bill" Hart and Charlie Ray. Her most recent success is her interpretation of Zola in "We Can't Have Everything." But better still is her next feature which she has just completed entitled "My Lady's Garter."

"TITLES" SAY—Thought of changing the name of this column to "Matrimonial News" or "Latest Divorce Proceedings" or some other more apt name. At least I will almost guarantee one but I cannot do so. I have in the past but only credited to that infamous "They" family.

Kitty Gordon is suing Captain Ford for divorce and the suit is being heard by Judge Wilson, her personal manager. Of course the report has been denied—several times but nevertheless the "uipers" are being prepared.

Mac Murray and Robert Leonard are married. They are in New York now, having quitted the coast at the expiration of their Universal contract. They haven't told us what they are going to do next.

DAVE WAS THERE—For the first time in the history of house of representatives, a motion picture of the body has been obtained. It was David Griffith who set up his camera in the interior of the house to get some striking scenes of the activities in connection with the selective draft amendment, to be used in his sex-reef photoplay exemplifying the draft. Dave to date has filmed the house of Lords, Commons, Heav-

MacDOWELL CLUB'S PLANS FOR SEASON

The Fishermen of British Guiana Disdain Bait, Using Spears Instead. The daring Lyman H. Howe captured men who invaded the dense jungles of British Guiana, in South America, to film Kaieteur Falls for the newest Howe Travel Festival, which comes to the Myers theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 27 and 28, matinee Thursday, succeeded in photographing queer native fishermen in action.

These fishermen disdain bait; they have no fish hooks to annoy them; they carry nothing in their hip pockets, since their trousers consist merely of a well developed tan, and they do not even utilize a fish pole. Instead, they employ a long spear with a barbed point, to which is attached a cord. Sighting the fish, they take careful aim and hurl the spear into the water. Their aim is almost invariably true and few stories of "the big one that got away" are told in the jungles of British Guiana.

On page four of the Nov. 22 issue of the Chicago Tribune, Corporal Alexander Dodd was reported being awarded a distinguished service cross for gallantry in a battle on Oct. 4th, 1918. A raiding party of the 101st Central Postal Directory, of our boys and Mr. Dodd, though severely wounded by shell fire and grenades, continued to operate his automatic rifle until the enemy attacked him, being captured prisoners and giving up valuable secrets. His rifle alone dispersed the enemy. He is a Walworth boy and nephew of M. G. W. Sowles, editor of the Walworth Times. We are justly proud of our soldier Alex.

"Well, what are we going to do?" Bopp said helplessly. "Those poor devils out there are counting on us. Think of being on a vessel loaded with bread, butter, eggs, vegetables and meat and having it break up under your feet. What shall we do?"

"I'm afraid we won't have time to do anything," I decided. "If the back is broken. It's only a question of seconds now."

The people on board realized it too. They hastily launched a life raft over the side and scrambled on to it as the decks crumpled beneath them and became a twisted mass of timbers that writhed for a moment and fell back into the waves to become driftwood.

The raft fortunately had cleared the wreck in plenty of time and was now drifting past our ear toward the mainland. The men on board seemed busy arranging a sort of mast and sail made out of an oar and a couple of oarskins. When they got that rigged up two of them held it up while a third attempted to steer with a second oar.

"They're going to try to land on the other point of the cove," Lucile said. "We must be there to help them when they come ashore. There are rocks about a hundred yards out where the raft will strike if it isn't driven past." She led off on a dog trot which took the last tack out of me when I attempted to follow. I got there some way, however, but minus the power of speech.

"Don't land here!" shouted Lucile from the teeth of the gale. "Dangerous rocks!"

"They discovered the rocks for themselves almost immediately and slid off from the raft in a compact group. Under the direction of Kent, who had read a book about it somewhere, we formed ourselves into a life line by holding on to one another's hands and wading out into the surf.

One by one the shipwrecked victims struggled to us and were passed on up to the shore. Three were landed in this way, but the fourth failed to make it. I could see a head bobbing up and down a hundred feet away, but in a moment the head disappeared altogether.

"That man can't swim. He's drowning," Lucile shouted. "Won't somebody save him?"

"I'll get him," I immediately volunteered briefly.

"You'll be drowned yourself," Lucile protested.

"No, he won't," Bopp assured her. "Monty can swim like a turtle. I've often seen him in the tank at the Athletic club. Besides, he's eating like a full of air as a life preserver."

I disengaged my hand from Kent, who was next to me in the line, and struck out for the spot where I had

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—puffy eyes—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for cod liver oil, being their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone by toning up the system and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. It was not until I had almost reached shore that I noticed anything peculiar about the young woman. I almost dropped her when I happened to glance down and discovered that she was clad in the silk tights, doublet and boots of Rosalind in "As You Like It."

CHAPTER VII.
Lipton S. Blair and the Five Fridays.
LUCILE'S gasp of astonishment when she saw what I had rescued was followed by an exclamation of womanly concern.
"Is she drowned?" she asked.
I shook my head negatively.
"Just swallowed a little too much water, I guess," explained one of the men from the boat. "She'll be all right as soon as she gets a cup of hot coffee in her."

"Who is she, Captain Perkins, and why is she dressed that way?" asked Lucile, ignoring the reference to coffee.
"I dunno who she is," said the captain. "She came aboard at Eucina Vista and said she was going to Fair View."

"Dressed like that?"
"No, sir; she was dressed swell. When we struck the rock over yonder I told her we might have to swim and she'd order dress just as light as possible. She went into the cabin with her grip, and when she came out she was like this and asked me if I calculated that was light enough. I 'lowed it was, and we didn't have no time for explanations, because just then we broke in two."

We made a rough stretcher and carried the unconscious girl to the house.

"Good heavens!" he raved. "We'll all starve."

When we had placed her in an upstairs room we left her to Lucile's care and had a stag party in my bedchamber. There were now six men of us.

Of the newcomers the captain was a tall, wiry old man with sharp, ferret black eyes and a set of whiskers correctly trimmed for one of the "natives" in "Shore Acres."

One of the other men, a green, lanky youngster, was obviously an employee on the boat. The other was just as obviously a passenger. The boatmen were inclined to take things philosophically. The passenger was annoyed and uncomfortable under the inconveniences he had been made to suffer. He was not a fat man, but he had a build similar to mine before I started fasting.

I offered the passenger a suit of my clothes. "You're about my build," I suggested.

He looked at me with disfavor, as if

to say, "I hope not," but accepted just the same.

I told the captain and the other men I would outfit them with some of Mr. Green's old clothes. I rummaged the closets, but all I could find was a slightly moth eaten suit of woolen clothes and a red and white blouse. I had never suspected Mr. Green of owning anything as frivolous as that.

The captain possessed himself of the evening clothes and while he was putting them on I asked what had happened.
"I didn't have no business putting out," he replied, "but that good looking girl there seemed in an awful fix to get to Fair View, and old as I be, I let her horns woggle me. My biller were not in first class shape. In fact, I may say that some of her fines was constructed on the general principle of a doughnut, which is more hole than anything else. Jim, here, my engineer, ain't a regular engineer, being as how he learned by correspondence, but I hired him because he's one of the best cooks in the state. He must have done something wrong."

"The other man tried to interrupt. 'I know'—the captain brushed him verbally one side—'but you must have done something. Anyhow we plumb lost our steam completely. Drowned the fires too. Afore we could do anything we straddled the rocks out here and you know the rest. Now if you want a rattling good cup of coffee and some bacon and eggs just turn 'im loose in the kitchen.'

I looked at Bopp, and Bopp looked at Kent, who grinned.

"There ain't any coffee," he announced, "and there ain't any bacon and eggs."

"Well, anything will do, even tea."

"There ain't anything."

"What?" The passenger was on his feet in an instant. "Nothing to eat?"

"Not a thing."

"Good heavens!" he raved. "We'll all starve. I am positively faint with hunger now. What shall I do?"

"Why don't you try fasting?" suggested Bopp amiably.

"Besides I have an important engagement in Fair View," continued the passenger. "A friend of mine wired me that he was going to be married there this morning and I must prevent him."

"Prevent him?" I said inquiringly.

"Yes; marriage as an institution may be all right for the average intellect, but a man like Ned Blaney must not let his genius down to the height attainable by a woman."

"Ned Blaney," I repeated. "That telegram must have been for him."

"Is there a telephone?" inquired the passenger.

We escorted him to it in a body. Over the wire he asked for the best hotel in Fair View. That was a cinch for the operator.

"Hello. Tell Mr. Blaney registered there?"

"Thank you. Will you see if he is in his room?"

"Just gone out? When he comes in will you please tell him to call up?"

He turned to us. "What is the number of this telephone?"

"Tell him to call up Green's Island," I answered.

"Hello. Tell Mr. Blaney to call up Green's Island and ask for Mr. Lipton S. Blair. Goodbye."

After he had hung up the receiver there was silence for a few moments; then Bopp in a tone of repressed emotion inquired, "May I ask if you are Mr. Lipton S. Blair?"

"Yes."

"The famous novelist and magazine writer?"

"I'd hardly say that, although I suppose my work is more or less widely known."

"And you," continued Bopp, checking off on his fingers, "feel faint from hunger and think that you will starve to death if you don't get food?"

"Is there anything strange in that?"

Bopp said nothing, but picked up a magazine which Lucile had left opened face downward on the table and handed it to Mr. Blair. He looked at it for a moment and then smiled.

"I remember when I wrote this. It was over a year ago. It's a bully theory, isn't it?"

"Didn't you ever try it?"

"Why, no. I've never had time. I've always wanted to meet some one who had made the experiment to see if I was right."

When Itching Stops

There is one safe, dependable treatment that relieves itching torture and skin irritation almost instantly and that cleanses and soothes the skin.

Ask any druggist for a 35c or $1 bottle of zemo and apply it as directed. Soon you will find that irritations, pimples, blackheads, eczema, blotches, ringworm and similar skin troubles will disappear.

A little zemo, the penetrating, satisfying liquid, is all that is needed, for it banishes most skin eruptions, makes the skin soft, smooth and healthy.

ROCK PRAIRIE

Rock Prairie, Nov. 23.—This community was saddened to hear of the death of the late Dr. L. C. Randolph, which occurred at his home in Milton Junction Thursday. Tales of the Friendly Forest

"Now you stop looking at yourself in the mirror," said the Old Brown Horse "and get out of here. But first give me back my left hind shoe for I must go to some shoemaker to-morrow and have it put on." Now, I started this story off without telling you how we ended last night. You remember that Tooty Owl was in Uncle Lucky's house trying to catch the two little rabbits who had hidden in the buffet just as the Old Brown Horse threw his iron shoes at the wicked Owl.

So Old Tooty Owl flew away, and then Uncle Lucky and Billy Bunny came out of their hiding place and thanked the Old Brown Horse.

Well, the next morning he said good-by and went down to the village to have his shoes mended and then the two little rabbits went out for a hop in the Friendly Forest.

And after a little while they met Sammy Skunk in his new warm fur coat. Now Sammy Skunk had been asleep in his house for the winter but as the weather was a little warmer, he thought he'd come out for a little frosty air. But he was cross and a little sleepy, and when he saw the two little rabbits he watched them hop along, and then he went and looked at their little footprints in the snow.

And then he began to laugh, and of course he didn't feel cross any more. And what do you suppose he was laughing at? Why the footprints of the little rabbits' hind feet were always in front of the marks of their fore feet. Now, doesn't that seem funny to you? And you'd know better than I do.

When little rabbits are hopping fast they put their hind feet down in front of their fore feet and that is why they can make such great long jumps.

But Uncle Lucky and Billy Bunny didn't think there was anything funny in that, so they stopped and said to Sammy Skunk: "What are you laughing at, Samuel Skunk, Sam?"

"I was just laughing at the little prints of your front feet behind the big prints of your hind feet," said Sammy Skunk. "If you suppose people would think you were running backwards," and then he began to laugh again, and perhaps he would have kept on laughing if the mischief-maker Billy hadn't thrown a snowball in his mouth, and then of course Sammy Skunk stopped laughing right away.

"All the Little Forest Folks Love to play a little joke," sang the Jay Bird.

"I think your joke is pretty punk," angrily said Mr. Skunk.

Then he ran back into his little house to sleep for the rest of the winter. And after that the two little rabbits hopped away, and in the next story I'll tell you whom they meet.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 25, 1878.—Saturday night fire was discovered in a small frame building on Center street, owned by George Dann and occupied as a storage place for cooper's stock. The engines promptly answered the alarm and speedily stopped the blaze. The cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed to be the work of an incendiary, as there was no fire or light used in the place. Neither the building or stock are insured but the loss is small.

A. D. Hendrickson was surprised Saturday evening, who by invitation of his daughters had dropped in to help him celebrate his birthday. Tokens were given him as a further reminder of the day and the evening was spent in a social manner.

Burglars on Friday evening entered a residence on Academy street. Mrs. E. F. Kelsey, who boards there, was aroused, and seeing two men in her room asked them what they wanted. One of the men very politely informed her that he had come after her purse, but she was awake he would not disturb her. He bid her good night and walked off. The burglars secured no plunder.

Barbers Strike.

Madison.—The strike of the Madison barbers for an increased wage scale will continue. The new scale demanded by the union is $18 a week with 60 per cent on the profits over $21. The barbers proposed a scale of $16 a week with one-half over $22. It is the general belief among the proprietors that if the new scale demanded by the union barbers should be put into effect it would be necessary to raise the price of shaves from 20 to 25 cents and hair cuts from 40 to 55 cents. This the barbers refuse to do, feeling that the public has been asked to pay enough for the services of the barber.

JANESVILLE LOST TO STOUTTOWN, 20 TO 0.

"A raw deal" is the way the football fans explain the defeat of Janesville, Saturday, by the high school team at Stouttown, by a 20 to 0 score. "Stout" Anderson, a former Wisconsin end of a decade or so ago, (the referee) gave the locals the short end on decisions and it is claimed he was the sole cause of their defeat. Time after time he would render judgments which showed that he knew football as played when he played, but not when he was on the sidelines. He was finding the locals off sides, but apparently he was blind in catching Stoutt.

Three touchdowns were made and two field goals at least two of the touchdowns were gifts to Stoutt by Mr. Anderson. Several forwards used by the locals did not put out as successfully as hoped, while every tackle formation was a complete failure.

The locals under the conditions which they were playing, played a good game, but throughout the entire game depended entirely on straight football. Sprinkling, at full, played good, and in most cases made gains when carrying the ball. Roy at quarter, was injured and forced to retire from the game, which loss handicapped the entire team. Strout and Powers also showed up good, but were also handicapped by the strict rules laid down by the referee. The Janesville line showed up fine, especially Gavin and Black. Nuzum and Allen at ends played their usual stellar game, as did Scobie at center. Logan at tackle, and Kuchs at guard. The game was interrupted at frequent intervals with disputes between the Janesville coach and the referee. About twenty from Janesville accompanied the team. A stiff week of practice is on hand for the squad this week in preparation for the game with Robert next Saturday. The practice must be very hard, indeed, if Janesville is to win from them, as the local boys won from Walworth, Saturday, by a 7 to 0 score. The line-up of Saturday's game follows:

RIVAL ELEVEN TO BATTLE FOR HONORS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Nov. 25.—A post season football game between the University of Illinois and the University of Michigan, the only eleven unbroken by any western conference, will be played next Saturday, if a number of obstacles can be overcome.

Illinois alumni of Chicago started a movement today to bring about such a contest, although the time for completing the terms was considered short. Unofficial reports from both schools stated that the athletic authorities would not be averse to playing a game which would establish an undisputed claim to the western conference championship.

If Ohio should be willing to forego its scheduled contest with Michigan, consent of the military authorities at Illinois and Michigan would be necessary.

As much as it is found impossible to arrange a game for next Saturday, the promoters say December 1, may be available.

Refuses Date

Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—Ohio State University will refuse to cancel its game here with the University of Michigan, next Saturday, to permit of a post-season championship game between Illinois and Michigan. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State University, said today.

MORRIS MILLER

I ran
My typewriter
Into the garage
Early the other day
And went out
To a football game.
It was a
High school affair,
The first I'd seen
In years.
One team
Represented
The old school
Where I did
Part of
My rah-raing
And I want
To say
That the rules of
The game proper
May have changed,
But the same old
Stuff is pulled
On.
This side lines
Somebody snaked up
Behind the referee.
Somebody else
And knelt down
And another conspirator
Shoved the victim
Who was running
And they all
Laughed.
Even the victim.
That trick
Was old.
When I was helping
Pull it.
Then there was
The cute guy
Who
Separated a girl
From a pretty
Pompant
And showed
How clever he was
At running
By letting
Her
Kiss him.
Old stuff.
And then
When
The first half ended
The referee
Told the guys—
Big enough in Size
To be playing
On the team
But lacking
Nerve
To amuse themselves
By using
An old football
Away
From some
Little kids
And trying to show
How clever
They were.
At drop kicking.
Most unusual
Feature of
The game was
That
My old school
Won.

Football, not soccer, but the man-to-man intercollegiate type, has been started in Porto Rico and the soldiers are taking to it like ducks to water, despite heat and sandy playing field that elsewhere would be considered too heavy for fast team work.

The first battalion of the Three Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment started the football craze late in September by challenging the rest of the regiment. Neither side scored, but two broken noses were reported among the casualties. This was the first blood drawn by the warriors and it added such zest to the life of the camp that the Three Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment has taken up the game.

As a result of the interest in the football game the athletic director has arranged for the regular program of "play day" events for the troops. This is probably the first appearance of football in the tropics.

Tennis enthusiasts are already laying great plans for a still greater boom in the sport. The net game, under war conditions, gained popularity all over the world. With nine of the ten ranking stars in service, tournaments of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association last season proved big successes. The tournaments conducted for the benefit of war organizations drew large crowds and netted huge sums.

And now that peace is here the talk of the leading tennis officials has turned to revival of the famous Davis Cup matches—the greatest events ever staged in tennis.

At the meeting of the U. S. N. L. T. A. executive committee next month it is planned to start a movement for the revival.

It is believed that England and South Africa would enter the games. Teams from these countries and the U. S. would play for the right to challenge the Australians—holders of the Davis Cup title.

The main question confronting U. S. tennis is how far they can go in proposing revival of the game, which automatically would ask Australia to defend her title.

Australia, it is pointed out, need have little fear of not being able to present a formidable team to defend the cup. Norman E. Brookes probably could lead the team. Brookes has distinguished himself in the war, won the title for the island team in 1914.

Brookes is still active in the game. He has been starring in Red Cross matches with Japanese players in Ceylon and the Orient during the past year.

Red Heath and Horace Rice loom up as possibilities for the team. They have distinguished themselves in other Davis Cup matches.

It is pointed out by U. S. tennis

LAYOFF MAY HELP YOUNG GIANT STAR

Ferdie Schupp.

John McGraw—who is still remembered as one of our leading baseball managers—opines that when baseball is resumed the Giants will have a good pitcher. Apparently John has kept only one eye on the fight for world freedom and the other on his ball players. He further states the layoff caused by the war may make Ferdie Schupp a greater ball player than he would have been otherwise.

Leaders that the nations who cared to enter the contest would have until next spring to decide upon the conditions governing the matches. The elimination matches leading up to the challenge round could be held late in the summer. The challenge matches would be held late in November or early in December. In Australia, as in other years, this would give Australia a fair opportunity to prepare its best team to defend the cup.

No nation would have any advantage over the other if the matches were to be held next year. The countries liable to compete have sent many of their great stars to war. Australia could not claim an attempt by the rest of the tennis world to catch her at an unpropitious time because she is well fixed for players—if not better—than the challenging nations.

There may be quite a difference between pitching ball and working eight hours daily around a two-story hydraulic drill press, but Jim Vaughn is finding the press more interesting than the baseball diamond ever was. The late Cub pitcher found in Mr. Crowder's "work or fight" order a chance to help win the war. He received an offer of essential employment from a motor company at Kenosha, Wis. "He works as good as he pitches ball," says his employers, which is saying a good deal for Vaughn. First thing fans will hear, it will be Vaughn getting a promotion. It was Vaughn's intention to make good before he took the new position. He moved his family from Chicago to Kenosha, bought a little cottage near the place of employment and is finding life interesting. And he still gets a chance to pitch ball. He serves the strikes and balls for the company team on Sundays and is bringing that club considerable prestige among the semi-pro teams, both in Chicago and in Wisconsin towns.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Nov. 25.—The reception at the depot holding the funds for the relief of the destitute Belgian children was broken into on Friday night and something like two dollars was taken. Operator Walsh had noticed a stranger hanging about the depot after the six o'clock train but did not discover the robbery until about eight o'clock. When Night Officer Tubbs was on his way to the City Hall to report he was accosted by a man, seeking a lodging place. After directing him Mr. Tubbs went to the city hall and later when at the depot was informed by Mr. Walsh what happened. Walsh described the man hanging about the depot and the description fitted the fellow seeking a lodging place. Officer Tubbs started out and rounded up his man and brought him to the depot where he was asked numerous questions. Later he was taken to the city hall where he was put through another third degree and made to produce his money. In taking out his money bits of broken glass were exposed mingled with the change being strong evidence that he was the guilty party and soon after he confessed to the robbery. The stranger claimed that his name was George Wopps and that he lived in Milwaukee before he took the new position. He said he was making for that city, and had walked from Janesville to Lima, where he hit the head end, being put off here. A hard luck story was given and his being down and out caused him to do the deed. He was

Will Close 2,000 Saloons

Milwaukee.—The signing of the bone dry bill by President Wilson, prohibiting manufacture of intoxicating beverages after May 1 and their sale after July 1 means the closing of 2,000 saloons in Milwaukee, a loss to the city of $400,000 in liquor licenses and unemployment of between 125,000 and 135,000 persons in the state, according to William H.
